the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has become an important employer of people with mental health problems.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the mental health of people in the public sector. The Department of Health (1995) has published a strategy for the mental health of public sector employees. This strategy is based on the following principles: (1) the need to provide a safe and healthy working environment; (2) the need to provide a range of services to meet the needs of public sector employees; (3) the need to provide a range of services to meet the needs of the public sector; and (4) the need to provide a range of services to meet the needs of the public sector.
